

COURIER-JOURNAL

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 7, 1871.

The Courier-Journal on the Jeffersonville and Indianapolis Railroad.

Hoover Riley A bargain will hereafter have charge of the news-agency on this road, and will deliver the Courier-Journal promptly and regularly to all persons on the line of the road who desire to sell it to passengers on the route at five cents per copy.

To Members of the Legislature.
After this week we will send the Courier-Journal only to those members of the Legislature for whom it is especially ordered by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the respective houses.

Comments in Brief.

In the Senate a resolution directing the committee on rules who referred the report of the trial of Webster to the bar of the Senate was introduced and tabled. The resolution relating to the withdrawal of Minister Casenay from the Senate was introduced and referred to the committee on the judiciary.

The Republicans of the city are buying cedar boughs at $10 a load, for decorating their churches. The trees are sold by the carload.

James Brown, Esq., of Louisville, No. 62, lost his badge on election day. The badge is reported to have been at the First-street station-house.

Coal is $20 per ton. This has been caused by the extreme cold weather, and the scarcity of coal in the country.

Capt. L. C. Coker, an engineer at the Nashville and Chattanooga, was arrested yesterday by being caught between two cars while trying to couple them. His injuries are not dangerous.

Two members of Dr. Paul's Committee of Foreign Relations, Mr. T. C. Tracy and Mr. S. C. Tracy, were brought to Louisville from New Albany, and after the funeral service, which was preceded by a short service, were buried at the Western Cemetery.

MARY NOYES, a young woman living at the corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets, was brought to Louisville from New Albany, and after the funeral service, which was preceded by a short service, were buried at the Western Cemetery.

Recently, said an attorney, "Mr. Beacher, the attorney for Webster, has been compelled to drop three cases from his audience."

"Well," said the Judge, "Mr. Beacher is not my client."

Gray and Campbell were each fined $20 for disorderly conduct, and held in $500 bonds for one year, and Gray was held in $100 to answer the charge of threatening to shoot Webster.

Capt. Webster, who was severely wounded, was brought up in front of the court, and the judge adjourned the trial to another date.

On Dec. 10, Mr. Butler offered to a resolution calling for information relating to the military services of Gen. Lee.

PERSONAL.

Major Baxter has been unwell for several days.

Isidor Hornsey, Esq., returned yesterday from a brief visit to the East.

James B. Beck will reach Frankfort today, having left Washington just before noon.

A young man, John W. Dickey, was married by Rev. Enoch Wood, of Jeffersonville, Ind., Tuesday night at the pastor's residence.

On Dec. 10, John P. Johnson, who returned from New York several days ago, is busy engaged making preparations for the lawyers' banquet to be given next week.

RAILROAD RIVALRY.

"Business is Business!"—A Wild Hunt Against the Railroads.

After the arrival of the mail, the New Orleans papers stated that the brothers and their friends would return to New York by way of Louisville. This announcement caused some alarm in Frankfort, as the two brothers were the most popular persons in town, and were of course to be the leaders of the opposition.

The lady immediately took the lamp down from the wall to hang it in the doctor's, but in the act of lighting it, the glass exploded, a portion of the flanking frame fell to the floor, a portion running over on the hand and arm of Mrs. Webster, and causing her to drop the lamp. The blinding liquid also fell on the face of Mrs. Webster's daughter, about two years old, and severely scalded the girl's face.

The condition of the daughter is not regarded as serious, but fears are entertained that the doctor's hand may be crippled if he does not lose it entirely.

Elective Festivities.

Last night the election of county and commissioners of Dr. Hamilton Griffin, accompanied by the Great Western Star Band, assembled at his residence to make arrangements for their annual election, and for their recently elected Councilman from the Sixth ward.

After several eloquent pieces of music by the band, the election was opened.

and a brief speech to the assembly who crowded the salons, the new Councilman followed the example of his predecessor by voting to his right on Third street, near Jefferson, where a dinner was prepared for the candidates.

Wine was served to the guests, and a musical entertainment was given by the band.

and was greeted with applause by many friends that surrounded the room, while the banquet, prepared by Mr. Webb, the cook, completed the enjoyment of the guests.

A Velocepede Outrane a Street-Car.

An exciting race occurred late yesterday afternoon between a Fourth-street car and a velocipede on a velocipepede starting on Chestnut street, and ending on Main street.

The race was won by the velocipede, and started upon the spur of the moment by both parties. The velocipede was soon in the lead, and the street-car was in close pursuit, when both car and velocipede stopped suddenly, and were again in close competition.

The car had stopped, but the velocipede continued to run, and the street-car was about to start, when the boy on the velocipede, who had stopped, again started, and the street-car was overtaken.

The car then stopped again, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped, and the boy again started, and the street-car again overtook him.

He again stopped